

(NOTE TO INTRODUCER, RODNEY'S LAST NAME IS PRONOUNCED LISH)

Too often we spend our time routinely doing the same thing we've done every day and every year in our job, in our family and in our relationships. Rodney is here to ask us to take a fresh look at how some things affect what we are doing, the risks we are taking and the outcomes we receive through "The Magic of Accountability".

His message is to change the way we look at some things, be more intuitive, and then be ready for the results. Rodney Loesch wears many hats. He is a Certified Financial Planner, an elected board member of Moberly Area Community College, The Missouri Golf Association and The National Alumni Board of Truman State University. As a member of the National Speakers Association Rodney speaks and consults on many leadership and motivational topics across the Midwest. He says in fact, his name has appeared on the front page of the Wall Street Journal almost 500 times, especially since he got that two year subscription.

Please welcome Rodney.
